SOVIET NAVAL MOVEMENTS IN MEDITERRANEAN

- I. On 12 June, USSR notified Turkey that naval forces (1 cruiser, 3 destroyers, 2 destroyer escorts) would sortie through Turkish Straits into Mediterranean on 20 and 21 June.
 - A. Stated purpose was "navigational training".
 - B. No return date given.
- II. Cruiser Mikhael Kutuzov (Sverdlov class--15,000 tons) and two destroyer escorts (Riga class--900 tons) came out 20 June, headed west.
 - A. Three destroyers (two Kottlins--2,850 tons, one Skorry--2,300 tons) followed next day.
 1. This group split, the Skorry-class catching up with west-bound force, while the two Kottlins headed for Suez.
 - B. Westbound group refueled from naval tanker off Sicily 23 June, have now passed Gibraltar and turned north.
 - C. This group may be transferring to Northern Fleet.
 1. More ships assigned to Black Sea Fleet than could be used there.
 2. Annual Northern Sea Route convoy to Pacific probably now getting ready to leave Northern Fleet area; ships from Black Sea could replace vessels assigned to this convoy.
- III. Suez-bound destroyers also picked up tanker, passed through Canal 23 June--first Russian naval vessels since Revolution.
 - A. Press says they will spend some time in Red Sea.
 1. Presence Soviet Military Attache Cairo on board supports this rumor.
